

DESIGN TESTING PLANNING POLICY

Prospect,
South Australia

JPE were one of six Architecture Practices recently invited to develop two high level strategies for a nominated site, based on new draft Planning Policy being implemented by the Department of Planning and Local Government in conjunction with the 30-Year Plan for Greater Adelaide.

Each practice was required to prepare built form design responses for a 'Policy Led' and a 'Design Led' approach.

JPE put Place Creation as the main priority in their design led response, and explored ways to enhance the interfaces between the built form and the public realm, to provide a socially sustainable and community based development, and a degree of interaction between uses within the development.

The process was extremely positive from collaborative perspective, and succeeded in providing interesting and productive feedback on the policy using 'real' built form examples.
