

MARGARET TOBIN CENTRE

Bedford Park,
South Australia

The Margaret Tobin Centre is a significant mental health facility in South Australia and is named in honour of the former South Australian Director of Mental Health Services. The 3100m² Centre sets new benchmarks in the design of mental health facilities without compromising the emphasis on care, education and research.

JPE's commitment to collaboration and a team approach has delivered a building that exceeded the stakeholder's expectations as a contemporary environment that reflects current and predicted trends. The sensitive use of materials, natural light and visual connections impart a feeling that is both intimate and open.

This project received a RAIA Commendation award for Public Architecture in 2007.
